

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for etching an organic film that is capable of suppressing the amount of contaminants adhered to the etched substrate without deteriorating the etching properties or processing profile of the film, comprising disposing a ring formed of a semiconductor material on the outer circumference of a substrate to be processed, and applying a bias voltage to the ring.